500 Local K. of C. Sent Negresses At Communion To Penitentiary

Professor Longhran and State Deputy Tobin Deliver Eloquent Addresses at Kingston Council, K. of C. Communion Breakfast.

About five hundred members of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, were in attendance at the annual communion held Sunday morning at the 8 o'clock Mass at St. Joseph's Church.

During the Mass, which was celebrated by the Rev. Lewis Cusack, the Knights of Columbus choir, under the direction of Mrs. J. William Leary, rendered a special musical program. The main body of the church, which was reserved for the Knights, was taxed. At the reception of communion the Rev. A. Dugan assisted the pastor.

Following the services at the church, the members repaired to the auditorium of St. Joseph's school, where the communion breakfast was served. An appetizing breakfast, prepared by Mrs. L. Dugan and served by members of Court Santa Maria, No. 164, Catholic Daughters of America, was enjoyed. During the serving of the breakfast the Imperial Orchestra rendered musical selections to the delight of all present.

Grand Knight William B. Byrne acted as toastmaster and following the breakfast introduced as the first speaker of the occasion the Rev. Lewis Cusack, pastor of St. Joseph's. Father Cusack welcomed the members of Kingston Council to St. Joseph's and congratulated them upon their fine showing, assuring the local knights that the spectacle presented this morning reflected great credit upon the order. This expression of faith would impress all those who witness the unified display of service—fulfilling your annual Easter duty.

District Deputy Patrick T. Murphy exhorted the members to keep close to the touch with the activities of the council, thereby supporting the officers and accomplishing greater work. He also spoke on the merits of the insurance department of the Knights of Columbus and the purposes for which it was originally instituted by leading authorities of the country.

Revolts and Rebellion.

Professor John T. Longhran of Fordham University, one of the principal speakers of the morning, gave a very scholarly discourse on present day lawlessness.

Revolts and rebellion against authority and established customs, were discussed by Professor Longhran. The uprising sweeping in its scope, embraced arts, music, journalism, literature, the drama and even religion. Music has lost its melody and harmony and noise under the caption jazz.

Journalism is faced with a fight against the "yellow sheet" and literature and stage productions are becoming sordid and conspicuous for their lack of noble ideals. The cause of approximately four hundred years, including prohibition, is an outstanding example of the trend toward revolt of what heretofore was considered ethical in civilized society.

The World War. Professor Longhran said, has been given as the cause of this revolt against obedience, the considering conditions before August, 1914, the war severed the conduct of rebellion against authority. In contrast to the leaders of the revolt he pointed to Cardinal Mercier, the beloved Belgian prelate, and to his reception by leading figures, when he came to America.

Pragmatism and evolution, which are being taught in institutions of learning today, seem to be responsible for the renouncement of duty and obligation. Pragmatism, a newly coined word, a method of thought that actually results in every day life the standards of society and that which is desired by man is for the moment, might be responsible for the action. Evolution of man, analysis of which is vague and contradictory, has the tendency to reduce moral qualities to a context of physical force and might be responsible for the animalism which is spreading throughout present day society.

Pragmatism and evolution is applied to the crowd and conspiracy in their actions. If the philosophy is based on financial motives, regardless of the law's law of survival of the fittest, it is also displayed in the actions of the crowd and the swindlers.

Responsibility and restraint, duty and sacrifice are basic concerns that underlie every side the animal and human philosophy and will afford the only basis for progress.

Margaret Bassett and Ella May Williamson Sentenced to Ninety Days Each for Disorderly Conduct—Other Cases in Police Court.

Margaret Bassett, 19 years, and Ella May Williamson, 23 years, both negresses, were arrested Sunday night by Officer Reedell on a charge of disorderly conduct on Mill street. When the officer arrived on the scene it was to find Margaret and Ella exchanging vile and indecent language. They were promptly placed under arrest.

This morning before Judge Shaffeld in police court they entered pleas of guilty and were sentenced to ninety days each in the Albany Penitentiary.

John Corkery of Sawkill, an old offender, was found helplessly drunk on North Front street by Officer Van Buren and was placed under arrest. This morning John pleaded guilty. He said he had met a friend with a bottle. He was fined $5.

Henry Clark of Watervliet, on his way to New York, met a chance acquaintance who had "something on the hip." He staggered into police headquarters Sunday night asking for a night's lodging. Before he had completed talking he fell on the floor. Clark had lost a leg and used a wooden one in its place. He said he had enough money left to carry him to his destination and sentence was suspended provided he left town at once.

A Business Certificate.

A certificate has been filed with the Ulster county clerk by Charles H. Welford of West Shokan, certifying that he is conducting a business in the town of Olive under the name and style, "Rickory Hill Poultry Farm."

Foundation about fifty years ago at New Haven and of its growth, the order now being established in every state and territory of the United States and throughout the world.

Outlining the work, which has been accomplished in past years and movements now under way there was great interest manifested by the assembly. Among the notable work accomplished was the promotion of Catholic Education and charity, providing education and homes for Catholic orphans, endowment scholarships in colleges, lectures, endowment hospital beds, providing sanatoria for sick members, employment bureaus, etc.

Recognition in recent years of the place the Knights of Columbus holds in the world was brought about in a great measure by work in the World War. The large amount of money entrusted to the directors, contributed by members of the order and families and friends, forecast this recognition. Besides the great work carried on during the war the order still in the hospital for whom the war still rages, can attest today to the work the knights are still carrying on. Throughout every veterans' hospital in the land today there are secretaries, seeing to the needs of these wounded veterans. The money to carry on this work is the residue of the amount given during the war. Few organizations today can show this record.

A Providential organization was the name given the Knights of Columbus by Pope Pius, a distinction rivaled by all other church societies, performing the work of the apostolate of the laity. Little did the founders of this great organization think that in this period which is the climax of the world's history, the Knights of Columbus would be raised to such great heights. A great work today is also being carried on in Rome, where the Knights of Columbus are in charge of the recently acquired children's center. Money for the carrying out of this work at Rome is being subscribed by each member of the Knights of Columbus. A recent report that this money was being taken for the money contributed to aid soldiers in the World War was readily and easily proven false.

One of the outstanding parts played in education of the Catholic youth was the presentation in 1924 to the Catholic University of Washington of $100,000 for a chair of American History. Through the American Effort, thousands of dollars were raised. Five hundred thousand dollars was also raised to endow this scholarship in the university. In the recent court fight over the right of parents to have their child educated, which was known as Oberon, Knights of Columbus also contributed generously.

Baldwin Faces Cabinet Crisis

London, March 1.—Premier Baldwin, confronted by a cabinet crisis of first magnitude, was today desperately attempting to find a means of compromise that could be accepted by the disputing factions of his ministry.

Sir Austen Chamberlain has precipitated the crisis by intimating that he favors an expansion of the League of Nations council and threatening to offer his resignation if the government attempts to send him to Geneva definitely committed to opposition to admission to other powers than Germany to the league council.

Sir Austen's threats of resignation have been followed by similar threats from six other members of the cabinet, who take a view opposite to that of Sir Austen and promise to quit if Sir Austen is permitted to vote for seats on the council for Poland, Spain and Brazil, in addition to Germany.

These ministers, it is reported, have already placed their resignations in the hands of Premier Baldwin, making them effective, when Sir Austen is permitted to go to Geneva without instructions to oppose the Polish and Spanish claims. The cabinet is in session today, as it has been for several days, and it is anticipated that a formal decision will be made during the next forty-eight hours.

Ralph G. Hoag Granted Decree of Divorce When Detective Testified Mrs. Hoag Was Living With Fred Weeks on Landerman Avenue—Case Heard Before Justice Sargent in Newburgh.

Ralph G. Hoag, native of Newburgh and resident of New York, was granted an interlocutory decree of absolute divorce from his wife, Edna, in supreme court, Newburgh, today, when witnesses testified that the woman had been living in adultery in Kingston, says the Newburgh News. Justice A. H. F. Seeger heard the case, and Jacob A. Decker appeared for Hoag. The wife was not represented in court.

The couple were married in Newburgh on February 24, 1914. They have no children, and Hoag has been away from his wife for 10 years. The plaintiff alleged that Mrs. Hoag had been living as Mrs. Fred Weeks from April 16, 1925 to December 30, 1925.

Lindsay D. N. Hutchins, a detective, said that, accompanied by Karl Jurque, he had come to Kingston on December 30 last, and had there met Hoag. The party went to 10, Landerman avenue where "Mrs. Weeks" was found. She had been working in a laundry while Weeks was employed as a chauffeur.

When Hutchins accused the woman, she at first denied she was the party sought. Later, on seeing Ralph Hoag, she admitted her identity and accepted service of the papers in the divorce action. She said she had left her husband because he was addicted to the use of narcotics. Mr. Jurque also testified, seeing the woman near the laundry. It was said Mrs. Hoag announced she would marry Weeks if Hoag obtained the divorce.

Benedictine Ball Easter Monday

Announcement is made by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital that April 5 will be the date of the annual Easter Monday ball.

The general public is pretty thoroughly acquainted with the purposes of this ball, and the response of patrons year after year is very gratifying to everyone connected with the Benedictine Hospital. Once a year, at Easter time, the Ladies' Auxiliary undertakes to raise a sum of money for the hospital. It is the only time during the year, with very few exceptions in the past several years, that public funds are solicited. Everyone knows the worthiness of the cause and a most generous response is always forthcoming.

The ball this year will have attractive features never before attempted by the auxiliary. The New York State Artillery has been secured for the event. Committees are being formed and plans are being perfected to make this the largest and most successful of Benedictine balls.

$10,000 Fire In Ellenville

Twenty-five Guests Driven by Fire From Ellenville Hotel Sunday Night—Damage Estimated at $10,000.

Damage estimated to reach $10,000 was caused by fire, smoke and water to the Mitchell House, Ellenville, Sunday evening. The fire which broke out about 5 o'clock, is thought to have started from a defective chimney in the south wing of the hotel at the corner of Center and Main streets, and crept up to the roof. It was necessary to tear off the tin roofing so the firemen could put out the flames.

The south wing was occupied by James Stadora, the proprietor, and his apartments received the greater damage. The fire department did excellent work in subduing the flames and preventing them from spreading. Assistant Chief J. Frederick Pratt fell and received bad cuts on his right hand and wrist.

There were about twenty-five guests at the hotel who were compelled to leave their rooms for the night. Someone sent word to Napa, and the firemen from there responded but their services were not required. The Mitchell House is a large frame structure and had the fire gotten under good headway it is probable the village of Ellenville would have had a big conflagration.

Renews Wrangle Over Water Power

Governor Smith Says a Small Group Seeks to Retain for Themselves the Right to Own and Control Great Waterpower Resources.

Albany, March 1.—Governor Smith today renewed his fight with Republican leaders of the legislature over waterpower.

"No interest in this state," the governor declared, "has been nearly successful in backsliding and before the real issue with regard to waterpower development as have been the forces that are behind private and private development."

The governor favors state development of waterpower, while the Republicans are for private development.

At a recent hearing before the waterpower commission, Col. Hugh L. Cooper, a noted engineer, declared that state development of the power sites on the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers would cost more than twice as much as private development.

In his statement today, Governor Smith pointed to the fact that when Charles E. Hughes was governor in 1907, he declared that waterpower should not be surrendered to private interest "but should be preserved and held for the benefit of the people." Governor Smith also stressed the point that former Governor Nathan L. Miller favored state development of power on the barre canal.

Referring to state development of the power sites, Governor Smith said:

"Nothing stands in its way but the desire of a small group of men, powerful and influential, to retain for themselves and the private interests they represent, the right to own and control these great waterpower resources."

"Nothing will happen. History will repeat itself. The private waterpower interests, backed for the time, will return to their trenches and await an opportunity to come back again unless aroused public opinion convinces the members of the legislature that they should adhere to a plan long ago suggested, and once adopted, to develop these waterpower sites in the state itself for the benefit of all the people as against private development for the benefit of the few."

The governor quoted from a statement made by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Company, in which they expressed approval of state development of the power sites on the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers.

Davis Favors Gasoline Tax

And Also Registration Tax That is Substantial as Automobile Owners Are Not Now Paying Fair Share.

The following letter from Assemblyman Millard Davis states clearly his views on the taxation of motor vehicles and gasoline:

E. H. Bogart, Esq., Kingston, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Bogart: I have your letter of February 16th stating that the 1,500 members of the Ulster County Automobile Club are opposed to any form of gasoline tax, unless a reduction is made in the 70-cent registration tax for the nominal sum not to exceed 25 cents, requesting me to oppose the bill and requesting an expression of my attitude in regard to it.

Fifteen hundred is quite a number and I trouble to think of taking a position different from them, but I am afraid I have to do this.

You state that this is an additional tax to our present tax system which is sufficient to provide for maintenance and construction. It surely will be an additional tax, but as I look at it, it will put the tax where it belongs. Real property has for all together too long sustained too large a share of the cost of building and maintaining roads and, in all the field of taxation, I cannot find what seems to me a more just tax than to have the users of motor cars build and maintain our public roads, and the measure of the tax seems to me to be adjusted better through the present license fee, or possibly the heavier tax on the heavier cars, and a two-cent tax on gasoline.

If I am informed correctly our registration tax brought in approximately $25,000 last year while the state expended during the same time approximately $24,000,000 and the counties have bonded themselves to the extent of $27,000,000, all of which, as to principal and interest, must be paid out of the tax on real property.

The tax law is in force and has been found very workable in every state in the Union except four of which New York is one. The registration fees in many states are heavier than in New York state. Automobiles were taxed on personal property at the same rate as real property, the tax in most instances would be much more than the present registration fees.

Taxing real property adjacent to roads in the older days was a fair measure of the person's use of the roads. But, even in those days, where there was an improved road, there was generally a toll gate. Real property owners, most of them, have cars and I submit that it is a much fairer way to tax them than the cars and through their use of the road than it is through their real property. And I submit that the automobile owners who are practically the only users of the road at the present time do not pay their fair share of the cost and, frankly, I favor shifting the burden from real property to the instrument that uses, and in some cases, misuses the roads.

Yours very truly, MILLARD DAVIS

"Where You Meet Your Friends."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BILLIE'S TRIP

Billie Brownie went on a trip to the zoo, and first of all he went to see the Taptirs, for he said he really had a lot of questions to answer back in Fairy Land about Taptirs, and he thought he'd better have a talk with them first.

"Well," said one, "I am a Malay Taptir, meaning that I am from the Malay Peninsula."

"I am a South American Taptir," said another, "meaning that I am from South America. But we are really cousins."

The front half of my handsome body," said the Malay Taptir, "and my legs are dark, dark, dark brown, while the hind part of my body is white. I'm a beautiful mixture. I'm very smart and fashionable, for brown and white, or black and white, makes a very stylish combination."

"People never can decide whether I am black and white or brown and white. Let them fight it out among themselves."

"My color is of a beautiful brown like mahogany," said the South American Taptir.

"When people see me they think how lovely it would be to have lots of fur mine. Just my color."

"And I always keep myself looking well. Some people say I am like a seal."

"I am so shiny and smooth and well-fed looking, while others think I'm like an elephant."

"That is because of my long nose, which is so like an elephant's trunk. They say we are distant cousins of the elephants."

"We're not as big as elephants," said the Malay Taptir.

"No, we're as small as seals," said the South American Taptir. "I have a great talent," he continued. "I can whistle. It's almost as fine as to be able to sing, I think."

"I came from the mountains, and I was mighty hard to find. But as long as they brought me here I don't mind, for I like it very much and am quite happy."

"Ah," said the Malay Taptir, "I miss the swimming I used to have."

"I miss the swamps and think of the mud. I used to roam about."

"But there is one thing about the zoo I like. The leopard can't eat me here."

"And I used to be always in fear that the leopards would get me."

"I always traveled through the underbrush when danger was near, and my quick coloring would confuse and so they would not see me."

"I love the foot they gave me here. I'm absolutely satisfied, though, that my paws should be boiled. I suppose you have heard that before."

"Mountain it frequently."

"Let me remind you of the fact that I'll be sure to tell when in Fairyland and Brownland," said the Malay Taptir.

"I've cut out raw potatoes, and I've trained them so well that they always give me nice boiled potatoes."

"Yes, and bread and clover and hay. I've the herbs I used to eat when I was wild."

"Ah, you're a fast, and not nearly so friendly as I am," said the South American Taptir, as he wiggled his long nose.

But Billie Brownie was glad to have heard them talk, for there were a number of his friends in Fairyland and Brownland who had missed hearing about the Taptirs, and they thought they were curious animals and wanted to hear about them.

So Billie went and found out all he could about them.

These were the conversations they had. He thanked the Taptirs politely then made a bow, put on his stockings and jumped in his airplane for home.

Competition for Parties

Draw on a large piece of paper an eyeless pin. Mark with a circle the spot where the eye should be. Spread this on the floor or hang it in some convenient place. Blindfold each child one by one, and, taking them a few yards away from the paper, let them find their way to it and mark with a pencil where they imagine the eye should be. The child who gets nearest right wins.

Hole in Billy's Stocking

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed little Billy, "there's a hole in my stocking as big as a silver dollar!"

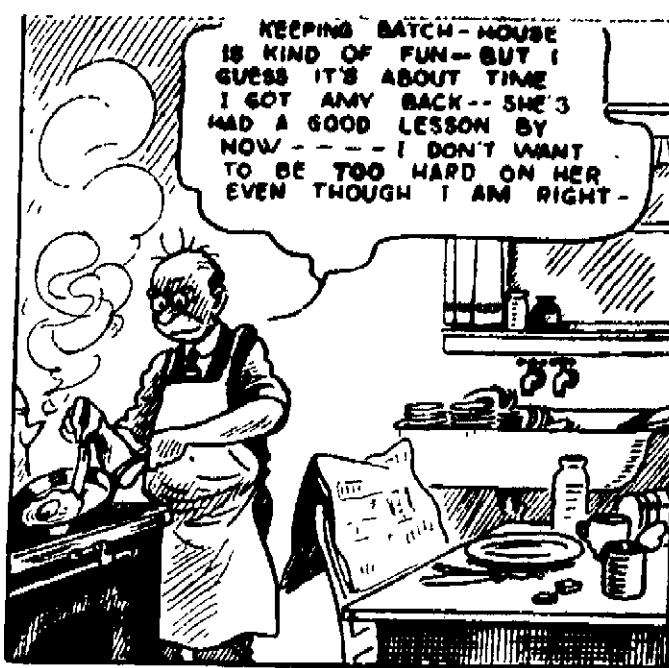

"Are you sure it's that large?" asked his mother.

"Well," was the reply, "it's as big as 50 cents, anyway."

Daughter—"Oh, I saw Ethel's new fur and Tommy Dodd's second wife and a darling coat trimmed with beaver."

Demands have been made for the discontinuance of the practice of making jokes about prohibition and plunkers. Why are the mothers-in-law silent at such a time as this?

Did you ever see a person in the moon get a wrong telephone number or a busy signal?

The old-fashioned girl used to be more of a mystery to her boy friend. But the present day flapper is a revelation.

"The modern girl is fond of sports," observes a writer in a health magazine. "Especially when they are good sports."

Mrs. Goldie—"I attended the hole in your trousers pocket after you went to bed last night. Am I not a helpful little wife, dear?"

Mr. G.—"Um-er-yes, but how in thunder did you know there was a hole in my pocket?"

One thing which shows the world is all right is what a hard time a bum sport has.

Warden (to condemned man): "Have you anything to say before we spring the trap?"

"Well, sir if it's just the same to you, I'd like to have a mattress under them gallows. If that rope busts, I'm like to get hurt."

Wonder why the hours spent in pleasure are only about half as long as those spent in work?

Test: That's An Ostrich!

The supreme test of a man's poise and self-possession is to put him in a room where two women are whispering.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 1.—After a firm opening, in which a number of the industrial stocks scored moderate gains, the curb market developed a reactionary tone today and prices were swept downward, adding new losses to last week's drastic declines. The public utility stocks made a firm stand in the early trading, but selling orders crowded the market and losses in active issues ranged from 2 to 5 points. Penn water and power was an exception, a new gain of 7 1/2 points.

Auto stocks continued its spectacular forward movement and sold up 4 1/2 points to 73; St. Regis Paper was down 3 points at 72; Wilson & Company Class A lost a point at 25 and the preferred was down 1 1/2 to 64 1/2, both being the lowest prices for the year to date. Foundation Company Foreign lost 5 1/2 points at 22.

Oil stocks offered little resistance to the selling pressure of the bearish professionals; Carab Syndicate declined to 14 1/2 down 3 points; Lago issues declined to the lowest prices of the year; Humble Oil sold down fractionally to 88 1/2; Indiana Pipe Line was down 1/2 at 66 1/2; Standard of Indiana fractionally higher. North States Power Company 5 1/2 per cent bonds advanced a point to 118 1/2.

New Attempt to Dry Up New York

Andrews Says Prohibition Was Never Given a Fair Test—Laps Society, Hostess Who Serves Liquor.

New York, Mar. 1.—The business of drying up New York was begun all over again today when Major C. P. Mills, the new prohibition administrator, took up his duties. Major Mills, a West Point graduate, succeeds John A. Foster.

Washington, Mar. 1.—Gen. L. C. Andrews, prohibition chief, will be the first witness at the house alcoholic liquor committee's investigation into prohibition conditions, Representative Grant Hudson, (R.) of Michigan, chairman, announced today.

Hudson said the inquiry will get under way within a few days. An appeal will be pressed before the house to authorize appointment of a clerk for the committee.

The present agitation and widely divergent views existing on prohibition are not conducive to the peace and security of the United States, Andrews said.

"A commission composed of trained experts, in which the country has entire confidence, is essential," Andrews asserted. "No doubt must remain as to what prohibition has done."

"If the wild statements issued on the prohibition situation could be resolved to real facts, the public mind would be relieved and the government could settle down to efficient law enforcement."

Andrews pointed out that the government has no machinery to study the effects of prohibition. Funds are provided for enforcement, not investigation he said.

"Other nations are inquiring into prohibition," he said. "They consider it a big sociological experiment. Who can answer their question? I would not attempt to do it, until the question has been taken out of the controversial and political field. Then we may proceed intelligently."

Prohibition has never had a fair test in the United States, according to Andrews. He said that it could not be fairly tested until Congress provides sufficient enforcement machinery.

Both the judicial and police machinery must be reinforced to obtain real enforcement, in his opinion. Andrews added that he was seeking to overcome these handicaps through organization on the limited funds available.

Andrews rapped the society hostess who serves intoxicating liquors to her guests.

"The hostess should apologize for serving liquors, not for failing to do so," Andrews said.

"It seems to be a social requirement that liquor should be served. Many people serve and drink liquor in their homes not because they like it but because it is the social thing."

EXPECT ANNOUNCEMENT OF DAVIS'S CANDIDACY

Washington, March 1.—Announcement of the candidacy of James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, for the governorship of Pennsylvania is expected some time this week.

Questioned today, Secretary Davis was non-committal, but said he might have something to say "in a few days." Davis will enter the race, it is understood, with backing of the Mellon interests in Keystone politics.

Today, Secretary Davis said he was more interested in an interesting "except" that is expected in the Davis home shortly. The stock is near.

HOUSE PASSES BILL ABOLISHING LABOR BOARD

Washington, March 1.—By the overwhelming vote of 381 to 13, the house this afternoon passed the Watson-Parker railroad bill, abolishing the railway labor board, and creating instead a regional system of arbitration for settling disputes between the carriers and their employees.

The plan of railroad industrial peace embodied in the bill was worked out by a joint committee representing the brotherhoods and the executives of the roads.

ANDREWS FAVORS PROBE OF EFFECTS OF PROHIBITION

Night in Borneo Has Charm All Its Own

In all places there are lovely interesting things to listen to at night. You are not sleeping, but the noises in Borneo are different from those elsewhere. There are decaying of closely growing vines and ferns just off any road. The jungle climbs up and down very steep hills. There are great trees and small trees. There are many monkeys. And there are many monkeys. So there is the drip, drip of the gentle rain, and perhaps the roar of a little stream over full. Then a great chatter with rough shrieks drowning out every other noise for a while. Then as all the gentle noises begin broadcasting again, groan, swelling to a deafening crash. Other smaller groans and crashes follow. A great tree, not too well rooted, has gone down, taking all the tangled other trees along. As things quiet down, you will hear a few tentative bird calls and just as you begin to feel sleepy, the gun in the village is discharged. This means business and every one with work to do jumps out, for the time to get the work done when you live in Borneo is while the night's coolness lingers in the air.

Anyway, She Thought She Got Fresh Air

"Speakin' of the weather blinks me Doc Brady was tellin' the boys up to the shore the other night 'bout that old couple that lives in that house over to North Danville that Alram Pritchard owned before he moved up to Center. Doc says the old man won't have no window open at night time and the old woman's all for fresh air, and Doc says their hired girl told him that the other night the old folk were havin' it back and to after they were in bed 'bout the window not bein' open, and Doc says the hired girl said the old woman got so mad she jumped up and broke the glass with her fist, and it seems the next mornin' the hired girl heard the old man laughin' his head off. Doc said the girl was scared at first, she thought the old man was havin' a chokin' fit."

"It seems that when the old folks woke up they found the old woman had smashed the mirror instead of the window."—Beatrice Herford in Life.

Appeals to Music Lovers

The Royal Welsh Eisteddfod is a gathering of Welsh culture that goes back to the Twelfth century for its birthday, or even earlier. The chief prize is open to the world. It is an Olympic of song. If one wants to enjoy quaint costumes and scenic effects reminiscent of a thousand years of a small nation's art and music, then Eisteddfod, with its gowned druids, tall-hat women harpists, banners inscribed with mystic Celtic symbols, with its birds of song, the ancient sword of peace or blowing the horn, is said to be the festival for any summer visitor to old Wales.

First Use of Scissors

It was formerly believed that scissors were invented in Venice in the Sixteenth century, but records show that implements similar to our modern scissors were in use very much earlier than this period. In the remains of Pompeii already were found made of iron and steel, as well as bronze. Scissors were also in use in various oriental countries from a very early period. It is stated that those manufactured in Europe were copied from the Persians. The Oriental scissors were very much ornamented and frequently in the form of a bird, the blade forming the beak.

DEMPEY WON'T FIGHT

AVERS "WILD BILL" LYONS

New York, March 1.—If you value the opinion of the so-called "Wild Bill" Lyons, bosom companion these many years of Jack Dempsey, you will forget about the heavyweight champion's promise to defend his title this summer and turn your attention to something important.

William is known as Senator, probably for the reason that he is a traveling salesman, and as "Wild Bill" because he is a perfect gentleman under all circumstances. But he knows more about Dempsey's intentions than anyone else which is little enough, and you can win some serious money from him if the champion ever fights again.

The Senator no doubt is guilty of what the vulgarians term popping off out of turn, since Dempsey, in town over the week-end took occasion to deliver his customary oration to the general effect that he would meet Gene Tunney and Harry Wills before the end of the outdoor season.

Mr. Lyons, however, will give you even money that he won't meet either man and 3 to 1 that he won't fight Wills.

The writer was curious. Was Dempsey really afraid of Wills? The Senator pondered.

"No," he said. "That isn't it. Dempsey simply doesn't want to fight any more. There is no reason for him doing anything that he doesn't want to do. He has plenty of money and is happy. He may change his mind and step out for one more shot but it will be against a white man."

There may be something in that, as the fellow said when he looked at the loaded revolver. One may have one's social position to maintain and one doesn't achieve this by brawling with an oversized colored man.

Whatever Dempsey really thinks is difficult to determine. He looks you straight in the eye, declares that fighting is his game and that he will be glad to return to it this summer. He says he wants to take on both challengers as soon as possible.

MISS WILLS WON DUKE OF CONNAUGHT CUP

Mentone, France, March 1.—Helen Wills has no new worlds to conquer for the time being. She has now defeated all of the tennis stars on the Riviera, with the exception of Mlle. Lenglen, and Mlle. Lenglen says she is out of singles until May or June.

The experts agree that the California girl by her decisive victory over Senorita Alvarez, the Spanish ace, yesterday and her winning of the Duke of Connaught gold cup has demonstrated her superiority with finality.

Miss Wills will probably curtail her program slightly now in order that she may not go stale before Wimbledon when she hopes for another match with Mlle. Lenglen.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE MIAMI CROWDAD.

The crowdad was discovered by a band of realtors hunting in the Everglades four years ago, and was taken to Miami where its energetic slinging was used to accompany the orators on the new subdivisions. Its ability to clip coupons was soon discovered, and in nearly every office a crowdad can be found holding a coupon in one claw and clipping it with the other. The creatures do not have to be tied, as they cannot travel far, since they are usually left-handed in one of their hind legs and must go in circles.

The head of the crowdad is a ribbert, with peanut kernel beak, and can. To the body are fastened toothpick legs, tail and neck. Spill, almond kernels form the claws while the hind toes are cloves. Metropolitan Newspaper Service. (Tomorrow: The Bumble Glipp.)

McNALLY EXPLAINS DEFEAT OF HIS TEAM FRIDAY.

The following letter has been received from Manager McNally, of the McNally All Stars:

"I, John St. East Kingston, N. Y., March 1, 1926.

Dear Sir:

Kindly allow me to explain some reasons why I think my club, the McNally All Stars, were beaten by unfortunate decisions in the game against St. Mary's team Friday night.

With but three minutes to go in and the contest, Pete Bruck playing center for St. Mary's, shot in a field from out of bounds. I called Referee McGraw's attention to this fact.

But the referee claimed he did not see him do it. That shot tied the score 17 all. Then when time up to end the contest the referee called a foul on my club. This allowed Van Buren to shoot a foul which spoiled defeat for us. I and all the fans who saw near the timekeeper's seat will say that time was up before McGraw called the foul on club. In the first half with Claire playing St. Mary's held my club to 14 to 3 score. The second half started with Claire watching the contest from the sidelines and Joyce playing in his place.

St. Mary's contend that if Claire had been in the game they would have beaten my club by a bigger score. Now do the basketball fans of Kingston think that my team got a "square deal"? The first night we played St. Mary's we held them to 16 and 16. But owing to the intentions of some we were forced to stop. Last Friday night by reason of an unfair foul we were beaten by one point. All I ask for is give my club one more game, and I will assure the public that it will be the hottest game they ever witnessed.

I am yours in sport.

WILLIAM T. McNALLY.

Mrs. McNally All Stars.
